

The International Dewey Centers Network Presents
A Joint Online Colloquium Series

Ning Sun, "Thin World, Thick Experience: The Divergence & Possible Convergence of Classical & New Pragmatism"

Representing the China Dewey Center
at Fudan University

Ning Sun is a professor at the School of Philosophy, executive director of the Dewey Center, and researcher at the Center for American Studies at Fudan University. He got his Ph.D. in Philosophy at Southern Illinois University Carbondale. He is the author of New Pragmatism: Exposition and Evaluation (Routledge, 2025), as well as books in Chinese on the Pittsburgh School, Kant and Hegel in analytic philosophy, classical pragmatism, and philosophy and wilderness.

April 29, 2026

<https://tinyurl.com/FudanDC>

Carbondale	Argentina	Dublin	CEST	Türkiye	India	Beijing	Tokyo
7:00am	9:00am	1:00pm	2:00pm	3:00pm	5:30pm	8:00pm	9:00pm

The Center for Dewey Studies at Southern Illinois University Carbondale, USA has facilitated the establishment of many International Dewey Centers. This active international network spans four continents, promoting research and teaching on the work, life, and legacy of John Dewey and on pragmatist and American philosophy. This colloquium is organized by the Center for Dewey Studies at SIU in cooperation with the other members of the IDC Network. Find out more about this program and the Dewey Center at SIU at <https://deweycenter.siu.edu/>

Upcoming IDC Colloquia:

- May 13: India Dewey Center at Savitribai Phule Pune University
- September: Italy Dewey Center at Università di Bologna & Università di Roma La Sapienza

Find out more by visiting:

